Ehud,

You think safe to dismiss the below claim from Stratfor ? I haven't known them to be prone to wild speculation but it strikes me as odd this business of "informal acceptance of Iran as the dominant foreign power in Lebanon" plus the fact that agreement would be reached so far in advance of the end March deadline.

Best,

Justin

Iran: Formal Nuclear Agreement Is Imminent, Sources Say

February 17, 2015 | 16:44 GMT

A formal agreement between the United States and Iran is imminent, Stratfor sources say. According to the unconfirmed reports, the agreement will include informally accepting Iran as the dominant foreign power in Lebanon. Lebanese militant group Hezbollah has tried to use Iran's negotiations with the United States to convince Lebanon's Maronite Christian, Druze and Sunni political factions that they face little choice but to accommodate Hezbollah's political demands, including a proposal to divide up the Cabinet and reallocate seats in the parliament to give the Shiite more representation.
